The Illinois Section of ASCE is a non-partisan, non-profit, professional group of over 3,300 civil engineers with expertise in and solutions for our infrastructure problems. As stewards of infrastructure and environment, we strive to keep the public and elected officials grounded in facts and focused on long-term goals and solutions. The Illinois Section has committees and technical groups that focus on specific disciplines within the civil engineering field. We organize seminars, luncheons, and other gatherings to foster knowledge and connectivity as well as to raise money for engineering student scholarships.

Our quarterly newsletter is distributed electronically to our members (which includes over 500 engineering students). The members look to the newsletter to learn about upcoming activities, to read technical and non-technical articles, and to hear about their colleagues. The newsletter is typically 10 to 12 pages long and is issued during the first week of March, June, September, and December. The Illinois Section also has a recently re-designed website: www.isasce.org. We have a constant stream of members and visitors on our website.

If you would like to advertise to our members, who are leaders in their companies and communities, please fill in the table and contact information below and send the completed form to the Advertising Director (shown below). Feel free to direct questions to the Advertising Director at any time.
